

Global Food Winter School

Are you a BSc student and curious about food innovations dealing with sustainable production and global consumption?

An opportunity to try out a food science course at Wageningen University in collaboration with Lund University (Sweden), AgroParisTech (France) and multinational food companies

2 ECTS

Global Food Winter School

During the Winter School you have the opportunity to get a taste of the global perspectives and insights into the interdisciplinary nature of the food industry.

• What to expect?

During these 5 days you will have an intensive programme. Daily lectures and workshops by internationally recognised leading experts in the field ensure provision of in-depth analysis on core issues on food science, such as Product Development, Sustainability, International Food Law, Consumer Behaviour. Cross-cultural communication skills are necessary to work successfully in teams. The course includes a product development assignment enabling you to practice these skills and to apply some of the knowledge gained during the week. You will also get a glimpse of daily practices in food companies during two visits and a workshop led by industrial scientists.

• What is expected from me?

- To have good command of English.
- To attend all lectures and activities, because you will definitely learn a lot!
- To read the study materials in advance, so you will be prepared for the lectures!

• Where will I stay?

There will be a room provided by students of Wageningen University, so you will stay in a student room in Wageningen!

• What about the food?

Meals (breakfast, lunch and dinner) will be provided by Wageningen University and the sponsors of the Winter School.

• What else to expect?

The opportunity to meet professionals from different fields, who will provide in-depth analysis on food science topics as well as on further career opportunities in the field. Additionally, a visit to a Career Event on Wageningen University Campus is included in the programme.

• When?

February 1-5, 2016

• Where?

Wageningen University, The Netherlands

• For whom ?

40 Bachelor students from food science or related programmes worldwide

• Costs?

€ 75.- for the programme including stay and meals + own means of transportation

Why at Wageningen University?

- Largest Food Science department in Europe
- Ranked 47 of the world's best universities by the Times Higher Education World University Rankings
- The most international university in The Netherlands
- Worldwide demand for Wageningen University graduates

Information and registration

www.winterschool.in/globalfood or send an e-mail to globalfood@winterschool.in

Deadline: January 4, 2016

